Conferences and Meetings

The Wellcome Trust Conference Centre offers an extremely varied selection of rooms, suitable for many purposes. From a 300-seat auditorium to smaller rooms useful for breakout groups or interviews.

All our main conference rooms have standard AV equipment: data projection, screen, flipchart, etc and a trainer's stationery box (supplied as appropriate to the style of the meeting). All rooms have natural daylight, natural air ventilation, and air conditioning. Most rooms have relaxing views across the grounds.

The Francis Crick Auditorium

The Auditorium has a tiered seating capacity of 300, with excellent acoustics. Using the latest touch-screen control system, it is possible to show videotapes, DVDs, data projection with access to the internet, and single-slide projection. Sound and light mixing desks provide advanced audiovisual effects on stage. In addition, meetings can be audio and video recorded. Video conferencing, webcasting and satellite link-up facilities are also available.

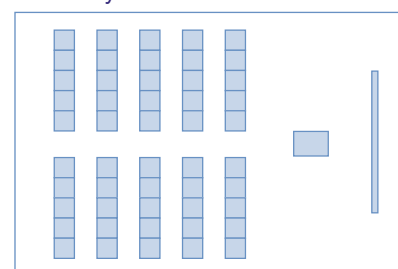

The James Watson Pavilion

This room, which overlooks the walled orchard garden and has relaxing views over the grounds, provides a light and airy multifunctional meeting room. The facility offers a wide range of audiovisual equipment.

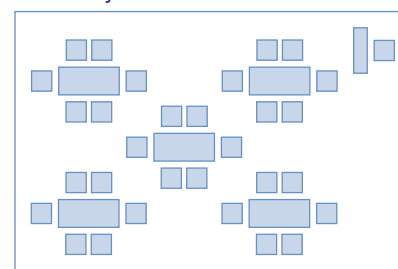

The Rosalind Franklin Pavilion (IT training room)

This dedicated IT training room, with 20 dual-boot desktop computers (plus a trainer's computer) has two operating systems provided for dedicated IT training purposes – either Microsoft Windows 2000 or Red Hat Linux. The integrated furniture allows easy store away for all computers and monitors to create a classroom layout for up to 40 delegates.

The Loft Rooms

With original rustic oak-beam features, these two first-floor rooms are part of the converted stable block, and are ideal for smaller meetings or as break-out rooms.

The Cloisters

Where fruit once hung on vines, posters and exhibition stands can now hang in the light and airy Cloisters built against the original kitchen-garden walls. Up to 57 large posters/exhibitions can be displayed around the Cloisters, which provide the ideal space for the circulation of up to 300 delegates around the centrally located Auditorium.

The Pompeiian Room

Pride of place in the Hall itself is the Pompeiian parlour, a room decorated in classic Roman style, a rare find in the UK, and one reason why Hinxtton Hall is a grade II* listed building. This room is ideal for drinks receptions, board meetings and private dining.

The Green Room

Situated in the Hall, this resplendent room with green rococo motifs provides a calm and relaxing atmosphere for board meetings and private dining.

The Library

Also situated in the Hall, the Library has been furnished to a high standard with the emphasis on accommodating training courses and smaller meetings.

The Bar

Ideal for informal meetings or break-out sessions. The Bar is fully licensed and open to residents in the evening for relaxing after a busy working day. The Lounges are available in the evenings for residents, with television, games, books, newspapers, magazines, etc.

The Lounges

The Lounges, located adjacent to the Library, Pompeiian Room and Green Room, are available for less formal meetings or as break-out rooms.

The Tennis Court Training Suite

Located close to the Residential Court, the purpose-designed, self-contained Tennis Court Training Suite comprises a bright and airy training room, an informal breakout room, dedicated refreshments facilities and parking.
